Reply on RC1
Chris Elders (Referee)

In fairness to the authors, they are using commercially acquired and processed seismic data. The processing and resolution of the data is typical for such surveys, but different to that acquired for focused studies of shallow sea floor sediments where higher resolution data might be acquired.