We would like to thank the reviewer for providing a detailed and in-depth review of our manuscript. We are pleased to see the reviewer confirming that our study is one of the few studies focusing on the African continent in relation to linking drought and drought impacts, and that in principle a revised version of the manuscript could be publishable. The comments, which in general we are happy to account for, will help us to further improve the manuscript and significantly raise the quality. We will provide a detailed point-by-point response to the comments in a rebuttal.
