Reply on AC2
Richard Rosen

Your proposed changes are very constructive. To repeat, the term "probability" gives readers a sense of far too much precision in the number. The IPCC continues to compound the problem when their reports say things like "to keep the temperature increase under 1.5 degrees C with a 67 percent probability the world needs to .............".