Thank you very much for all your pertinent comments that we will definitely include in our manuscript.

However, we do not share your view that including your corrections would imply "major changes". To our opinion, they can be easily built-in and would not need long hours of work.