I note that much of the discussion in the derivation leading up to equation 22 is misleading in that the statistical properties required are not actually properly flushed out. A clearer discussion can be found in Goldman in the arguments supplied by him after his equation [17]. These are tricky steps to sort out and some greater care should be exercised in the text. An alternative is to just give the result and cite Goldman for the details.