Thanks to R#2 for the positive comments.

According to R#1 and R#3, we reduced the length of the paper by deleting from the main text the description of data providers and past initiatives of earthquake catalogues in Italy; these details, that we believe are however useful for who wants to perform similar revision works on instrumental seismicity, are now handled in a separate Appendix. We did also some other minor changes tracked in the text, to simplify some verbose sentences.

We accepted all the corrections, except the use of mm/a instead of mm/yr, tracked now in yellow in the revised manuscript. We kindly ask the Editorial office to give us the final answer on the journal standard on it.
